From the Inside Flap

Why business and politics? These spheres are the lifeblood of human activity. The constructs of business and politics drive most of our activities, relationships, and goals, along with other, more banal behaviors that we might not always be consciously aware of. The marketplace shapes our tastes and consumption choices. The offices of government shape our ethics, morals, and basic values. To be sure, we can innovate or rebel in ways that conflict with conventional market or political wisdom, but regardless of our individual behavior, the realms of business and politics will continuously bear a great and urgent influence upon our day-to-day lives.

No matter where we work or what we do, there is no stopping the fact that, at some point in our lives, we will encounter a crisis. How an individual responsible for dealing with these types of situations reacts is ultimately the deciding factor as to whether or not they come out safely on the other side.

Crisis Management: The Art of Success and Failure focuses on different types of crises, symptoms, and models that recurrently threaten business and political environments. Pulling from no better teacher than history itself, Crisis Management is broken into 30 case studies that provide analysis and theoretical approaches that explore both successful and unsuccessful examples of management in the midst of crisis. While focusing primarily on business and politics, Crisis Management is a powerful tool for all readers who wish to understand how to better tackle crises when they arise. Learning how to remain calm and deal with critical situations is a skill that can be learned and mastered.
