From School Library Journal

Grade 2-4-With short, easy sentences and plenty of white space enveloping the large typeface, this biography is just right for emerging readers. Keller's story unfolds at a fast, reader-friendly pace. Students will probably skip over the few difficult names, such as Tuscumbia, the Alabama town where Helen was born, and Anagnos, a Boston doctor who headed an institute for the blind. Poignant, soft-focused watercolor illustrations complement the text. Patricia Lakin's Helen Keller and the Big Storm (Aladdin, 2002) has more cartoonlike art. Libraries owning that title should also consider Sutcliffe's book for general purchase.

Introducing new readers to some of history's most interesting and important people, these biographies focus on the pivotal episodes that show what kind of person the subject is (or was) and how he or she came to be famous. Although written in a story format, these books are not fictionalized accounts. A chronology of major events follows the story, along with a brief summary of the subject's life. Trapped in silence and darkness, Helen Keller longed to communicate with the world. Both deaf and blind, she struggled to express the thoughts locked in her mind. When Annie Sullivan became her teacher she learned to sign, read, and write. After graduating from college, Keller spent the rest of her life travelling around the world as an advocate for the deaf and blind.

Jane Sutcliffe did a very nice job of briefly chronicling the life of Helen Keller ...

By Shelli

Jane Sutcliffe did a very nice job of briefly chronicling the life of Helen Keller into small chapters for elementary age students. This quick read is filled with beautiful photographs, interesting facts, a timeline, and a list of websites and films for future research. This would be perfect for those first biography reports that students typically do in 4th grade.

My Mom Wrote It So You Better Love It!

By Joel Smith

My mother wrote this book about 20 years ago. It was read one day on Romper Room. What better recommendation could there be?
