Five Star Book One Star Protagonist

By Marcia Raicus

I read Mars in 1981, shortly after the end of a heartbreaking relationship I had with an heir of a wealthy Zurich family. This book is a dead-on indictment of the emotional deadness of the Swiss upper class. The book is beautifully written, and I would have given it five stars, but the protagonist is a one-star person. The book never answers the question - why couldn't such a privileged intelligent person pull himself out of his emotional isolation? Answer - because he didn't want to. Form over substance - that's the Swiss upper class philosophy and G-d help you if you don't have the right pedigree, clothing, furniture, social status, interests, and appearance.
