THOUSANDS NOT BILLIONS: CHALLENGING THE ICON OF EVOLUTION, QUESTIONING THE AGE OF THE EARTH BY DONALD DEYOUNG PDF

"Evolutionary models for life, earth, and space are questioned today by a significant group of scientists worldwide. They are convinced that the earth and the entire universe are the result of a supernatural creation event which occurred just thousands of years ago, not billions of years."

- Why do conventional methods for dating rocks differ so radically?
- What does carbon-14 found in diamonds tell us?
- Was there accelerated nuclear decay in earth's history?
- Are the creation and Flood accounts genuine historic events?

These and many other questions are addressed in Thousands...Not Billions. This book summarizes eight years of research by the Institute for Creation Research (ICR) and a team of scientists, whose goal was to explore the age of the earth from a biblical perspective. The project title was Radioisotopes and the Age of The Earth, or RATE.

The age of the earth is one of the most divisive topics today, much debated by scholars and laypersons alike. What one believes about the age of the earth goes a long way in determining world views. The Bible is explicit that the earth is young, but many people feel that science has proved our planet is more than four billion year old. Thousands...Not Billions provides a compelling challenge to Darwinian evolution.

Don The Baptist

By Don the Baptist

A review by Don the Baptist of the text "Thousands Not Billions" by Dr. Don De Young. I read the text in its entirety.

This is a good book, and I thoroughly enjoyed it. The text addresses one aspect of the gross misinterpretation of the government supported scientific community: Specifically, the age of the planet including the age of rocks found thereon.

In brief, a group of Bible-believing scientists got together, found their own non-governmental support (to insure honesty), and did some valid research – for a change – into a variety of commonly used dating methods. And as Gomer Pyle said (Yes, I'm old enough to remember Gomer. Maybe YouTube has a sample for the young people.), "Surprise, surprise, surprise..." the planet is roughly 6,000 years old.

How is this possible? Obviously, removing the US government from the equation is step one. This allows step two, honest scientific investigation. (It is difficult to be honest when your paycheck is based on producing a pre-specified result.)

On the positive side, scientific-double-speak is kept to a minimum so that the lay-reader will not be left scratching his/her head. On the other hand, for those who enjoy scientific-double-speak, page 18 directs the reader to the unedited results of the extensive investigations accomplished by the Bible-believing scientists. What could be better?

I was completely satisfied with the information presented.

One brief negative, as the font size and spacing is somewhat large (a good thing), it only takes a very few hours to read the 190 pages in their entirety (A bad thing, I could have used more.).

Best quote of the text, De Young remarks of one of the scientific communities accepted dating practices, "This is a discrepancy of 7.8 billion percent." (page 133)

Nonetheless, the information contained in the text will accomplish very little in any dispute between old earth-earthlings and young earth-earthlings, as the matter for both camps was settled 2,000 odd years ago when man collectively nailed the Son of God to a wooden cross on a hill called Calvary. God Himself responded by raising His Son from the dead. Obviously, this happened. You admit it every time you sign your name to any dated document.

How, then, does this settle anything? As this event happened, and has been proven both historically and legally, it is settled because you believe it happened, or it is settled because you have made the wilful choice to remain in ignorance... as you return the bloody hammer with your finger prints to the tool chest.

Godawful book, deluded fundamentalism

By peter veitch

Fabulous example of otherwise intelligent people having their brains reduced to mush due to indoctrination . Seriously stupid . PhDs using big words to mislead and deceive others . " the world is about 6,000 years old "? Right, and Bambi was a documentary

Good challenge to the reliability of radiometric dating methods

By Matthew Curtis

So, let me just start off by saying the following:

1. Young-earth creationists will like this book and think that it shows the unreliability of modern dating methods.
2. Evolutionists will dismiss it immediately.
3. Open-minded people who are perhaps on the fence on the issue of the earth's age will benefit from the point of view and the challenges the RATE group's 8 years of research present.

It is clear that the reviews so far of 'Thousands not Billions' support my hypothesis.

Now, on to the book.

Here's a list of the chapters:

Ch 1: A Brief History of Radiation Studies

Ch 2: Overview of Radioisotope Dating

Ch 3: Carbon-14 Dating

Ch 4: Helium Retention in Zircon Crystals

Ch 5: Radiohalos in Granite

Ch 6: Fission Tracks in Zircons

Ch 7: Discordant Radioisotope Dates

Ch 8: Radioisotope Dating Case Studies

Ch 9: Theories of Accelerated Nuclear Decay

Ch 10: A Proper Reading of Genesis 1:1-2:3

Ch 11: RATE Conclusions

Quotes from Ch 11, with summaries by me:

"For some years there has been a growing realization that carbon-14 atoms are found where they are not expected." -Pg 175

Since C-14 only has a half-life of 5,730 years, there should not be any measurable amount of it in substances over 100,000 years old. However, measurable amounts of C-14 have been found in what are assumed "ancient" materials, such as coal and diamonds. Diamonds I think are the most significant, since they are assumed to be like a billion years old, and they are also the hardest natural substance on earth, so they know there isn't any contamination in the system. So the fact that there exists carbon-14 in diamonds that are supposedly a billion years old should raise some flags to people.

"The New Mexico zircons studied by the RATE team have a radioisotope age of 1.5 billion years. If this were true, then the internal helium atoms should long ago have escaped from the zircons. Instead, however, the RATE scientists and others find high concentrations of helium still present inside the zircon crystals." -Pg 176

Zircons, unlike diamonds, are not a closed system, and helium atoms that are produced in the zircons escape over time into the surroundings. However, the helium should no longer be present if the zircons are really a billion years old or older.

Another important aspect of the RATE research is the discordance among results when multiple dating methods are used on the same rock. Several different dating methods should all give the same date for a specific rock if they really are accurate measures. However, RATE has found that very different dates are given for a rock, depending on which method is used.

Another thing that's really interesting is that RATE team had the Mt. Ngauruhoe site in New Zealand dated using several different dating techniques. The site formed only a few decades ago, but dates ranging from 0.27 million years (K-Ar) all the way up to 3,908 million years (Pb-Pb) were determined for the rock. This should also show the amazing unreliability of radiometric dating methods. If dating methods are shown to be grossly inaccurate for rocks of known age, how can we trust them for rocks of unknown age?

I also really liked the chapter on interpreting the creation account of Genesis 1:1-2:3. It is a popular view among Christians that the creation account is poetry and not narrative. RATE did some analysis of the Hebrew verb forms of both poetry and narrative all throughout the Old Testament, and the results were overwhelmingly in favor of Genesis 1 being narrative, based on the type of verb forms found in the chapter. (Poetry generally uses imperfect, while narrative uses preterit.)

Anyway, I would have liked to see a little more explanation/elaboration of research. But I do realize that this book is meant to be for the general public. RATE has produced two technical volumes from their 8 years of research that I think people who are advanced in science will benefit from more.

Note: I think it's worth noting that the RATE team contracted out the dating of the materials in their research to well-respected professional laboratories, so the idea that their data is not reliable is totally ridiculous and unfounded.
